Background

Jeff is a Retired Audit partner from KPMG's Philadelphia office. Jeff joined KPMG as a partner in 2002 after spending his first 18 years with Arthur Andersen – his first 3 years in Baltimore and the next 15 in Philadelphia where he made partner in 1998. Jeff had 36 years of experience serving public and privately held consumer and industrial market companies. He was the partner in charge of the Consumer and Industrial Markets practice and KPMG's Private Markets Group for the Philadelphia office. Jeff was also responsible for KPMG's recruiting activities at the University of Delaware.

Professional and industry experience

Based in Philadelphia, Jeff had 36 years of experience serving public and privately held consumer and industrial market companies. During his career, he has had significant experience with mergers and acquisitions as well as internal control assessments. Most of Jeff's clients were international in scope, where he has significant experience as both the lead partner on large public company engagements and as the engagement partner on significant U.S. subsidiaries of large multinational companies. Jeff advised clients on the application of complex U.S. generally accepted accounting principles and International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) and he was a designated IFRS reviewing partner. Jeff also has significant experience with initial public offerings, secondary offerings and registered debt offerings.

Other activities included:

- Partner in charge of KPMG's Private Markets Group and Consumer and Industrial Markets for the Philadelphia office.
- Member, board of directors and the executive committees, Japan America Society of Greater Philadelphia and Junior Achievement of Delaware Valley
- Advisory Board – University of Delaware Department of Accounting and Management Information Systems
- Interviewed for articles on the developments of IFRS and presented internally and to clients on current accounting developments including IFRS.
